

Hi Mark, this is a story about a small child with recessive dystrophic epidermolysis bullosa. When she was about 1 year old, we were fortunate enough to be in the original group of families who were able to use Alwyn Cream. I started using the cream on her two to three times a day, putting directly on her and on her bandages with other antibiotic ointments for the really sore areas.

It took about 3 months for me to see real results. Even if no bandages were on her, the routine with the cream never changed. I took pictures and still have them over that period of time. The redness disappeared and I also noticed her skin had more elasticity so when she fell, and she did, the injuries were not so bad.

I spoke back then with Alwyn Company regularly. We always discussed the advantages I was seeing and I carry that conversation with you today. It is the very best thing I have ever done for her. The results are astonishing and yes, she does look a lot better than those who have not been on it so long. When we did not have Alwyn Cream for a couple years starting in 2005, she itched and itched and was just miserable without. Thank goodness we have it now.

She is now 12 years old. Life for these children is very difficult. The cream has made her life more bearable than words can ever say. She uses it twice a day and the only area I do is her back.

We keep it available in school, on our person, and in her room, so if she needs to apply quickly she can.

If anyone would like to contact me about this, please feel free to do so. I have 10 years experience with Alwyn Cream, and everything I tried when I was without Alwyn Cream did nothing to help her and some things made her itch more.

You can share this with whomever you might like to, along with my email address and if necessary my phone number. Make sure everyone understands it takes 2-3 months to see prolonged results.
